

STATE MATTERS.

DURHAM HAS A "Betsy Pratt" Hotel. McNIIDER is smiling for the benefit of the Durhamites.

The Salisbury Fair is in progress, and succeeding finely.

BARNSUM'S Circus will be in Wilmington the present season.

"A CHILD deserted by its parents" is the latest Wilmington sensation.

It is thought that the Wilmington, Charlotte & Rutherford Railroad will reach Wadesboro by the 1st of December.

Work has been commenced on the Salem Railroad, and the cars will be running to that place by January 1st it is thought.

A MINERAL Spring highly impregnated with iron, has been discovered on the plantation of Mr. Eckel, near Greensboro.

The new temperance organization, known as the "Good Templars," are flourishing at Durham. New members are added every meeting night.

WILMINGTONIANS are afflicted with "rose rash," a new disease which comes with a hot fever and followed by a breaking out on the face and neck. It requires about four days to worry through it.

JOHN OWENS, a brakeman on the Richmond & Danville Railroad, was killed by extending his head from a window and striking the timbers of the Little Roanoke Bridge, which the train was then crossing.

The average fighting weight of the editorial staff of the Wilmington Journal is 189 lbs. each; the whole "kit" weighing 756 lbs. We shall take especial pains to continue our amicable relationship with the Journal.

THE Federal Court for the Western District has been in session in Greensboro, since Monday last. Says the Patriot: "We noticed within the bar in addition to our own lawyers, representatives from different sections of the State, and a considerable number of them."

There are 40 criminal cases pending in the District Court; 26 cases pending in the Circuit Court; 10 libel suits; 18 civil writs returnable at this term of the District and Circuit Courts; 10 cases on the Trial Docket. The Circuit Court will be opened next week.

A Political Conversation Between Two Ladies.

Mr. Editor: I am not in the habit of writing for the papers, therefore you will excuse the liberty of sending you a little incident, which happened not long ago, while I was sitting in my room in the hotel.

The door of my room being partly open between mine and the adjoining room, I listened to the following conversation between an elderly lady and her niece.

"Aunt Sarah, I cannot account for your being such a warm friend of Mr. Greeley. You formerly disliked him, and used to say he meddled with things that did not concern him."

"My child, I have several reasons for changing my sentiments. In the first place, I have long felt very grateful to Mr. Greeley for releasing from prison our unfortunate President, Mr. Davis. When a man performs such an act of benevolence as that, we are led to believe that in his heart, he can accommodate no other noble and amiable qualities."

In the second place, I fear I have been rather selfish in my feelings. The Dower which I received was mostly slaves. Many of these we had raised from infancy; they loved me, and I in return loved them like my own children, independent of self-interest. If these were emancipated, I felt we must all be thrown on our own resources. I could not assist them, and poverty must be our doom. To this I was opposed, but I was perhaps wrong; for our Heavenly Father saw fit to order the disposal of events."

"Dear Aunt, you used to call him a fanatical Abolitionist did you not?" "Yes, I did so, but even in that time he was honest. He believed that in a free country like ours, slavery ought not to be tolerated. In the abstract he was right."

If our slaves could have been set free by friendly Treaty, instead of the sword, which was the wish of Mr. Greeley, the sacrifice would have been greatly mitigated. In his speeches, his sentiments are both liberal and patriotic; he seems disposed to do justice to all, and restore our once happy land to peace and her rights. I think our Southern Ladies would be pleased to hear of his election."

At this period the wind unceremoniously shut my door, and I heard no more. Yours, T.

Humors of the Georgia Canvass.

We give the following article from the Mobile Register, which shows how the white Radicals in Georgia defrauded the colored voters out of their tax money.

How long will it be before the eyes of the colored voters of the South will be opened to the hypocrisy of their white Republican friends?

"DOING" THE NEGRO VOTER. Of all the humors of the canvass, the most open and barefaced, while at the same time the most cruel, was the practical-joke swindle played off in Georgia at this election.

David Porter, Grant's Surveyor of Customs at Savannah; John A. Lawrence, a Custom-house Clerk, and sundry others fixed up a "little game" that was far more sure than "thimble rig." These Grant Radicals constituted themselves "Trustees" to receive in trust one dollar per head from their poor negro dupes, for payment of poll tax for 1871.

The negroes paid up promptly; but the trust fund is still in the pockets of the "Trustees," not having been applied to the payment of the poll tax, as the poor dupes were green enough to suppose. The following, and many similar receipts, issued by the "Trustees" to the negroes who "registered" with them, were presented at the polls in Savannah. The silly dupes had full faith in their being "all right on the poll tax, sure." We give four specimens, all of which were on printed blanks, except the date, the name of the hopeful voter, and that of the recipient of the dollar.

SEPTEMBER 30, 1872.—Received in trust, of Seymour Hill, one dollar, to be applied in payment of his poll-tax for 1871.

(Signed) DAVID PORTER.

SEPTEMBER 30, 1872.—Received of Dan. Stevens $1, to be paid Tax Collector, on acct of poll-tax for 1871.

(Signed) DAVID PORTER.

SEPTEMBER 30, 1872.—Received of Morris Smith, one dollar, to be applied in payment of his poll-tax for 1871.

(Signed) JOHN A. LAWRENCE.

SEPTEMBER 27, 1872.—Received in trust, of Isaac Brotun, one dollar, to be applied in payment of his poll-tax for 1871.

(Signed) JOHN SEED.

But another Honest Radical made a pool by himself on Monday night, trapping some eight hundred negroes into St. Andrew's Hall, stealing from them $1 each and then leaving by the next train for Augusta. This putrescent rascal's name is W. H. Morell, and it deserves to go down to his funky posterity in a phosphorescent halo from his rotten morals. His swindle was the meanest of dirty jobs, and he did it in this way, upon the strictest business principles: numerous copies of this receipt having been courteously handed out by him upon the payment of the usual dollar, to wit:

SAVANNAH, September 30, 1872. Received in trust of one dollar, to be applied in payment of his poll-tax for 1871.

(Signed) W. H. MORELL.

We beg the colored brother to note that not only his white friends, Grant's custom-house officers, stole his hard-earned dollar and gave him a worthless receipt. Woe and sin! John Seed is a black man; and evil communications with white Radicals had corrupted his good black morals, he joined them in swindling his own race! Twig that, colored voter, and beware of the custom-house and post-office "Friends," who want all the offices while you do all the work, and then steal your money besides! If you will butt your heads against a brick wall, be smart enough to choose the spot for yourselves; and if you will band together against the white race, do it for yourselves. No white man but a Radical carpet-bagger was ever mean enough to steal a negro's poll-tax!

And beware of the black man who gets demoralized by loading about the custom-house. In the words of poetic paraphrase by a putative Gold Coast Levee:

Black man's nighmanhood to black man, Makes colored voters mourn!

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1872.

WHERE ARE THEY?

BY AUGUSTA MOORE.
This same old river rolled along,
With current deep and slow,
But where are they who trod its banks
A hundred years ago?
Hither the youths and maidens came,
As now they gaily come,
To sport beneath the orchard trees,
And watch the fragrant bloom.

They talked and laughed; they danced and sung,
They told the story old,
That charmed and thrilled the human heart,
Till death had made it cold.

And life looked bright, and earth looked fair;
They could not feed it true,
That just like these they must pass,
Or like the morning dew.

There seemed to be such need of them;
For service from their hands,
There rose, whichever way they turned,
Important business demands.

"How could the world go on," they thought,
If not for us in our place?
Yet on their river's pleasant shore
They left no single trace.

Old mossy, crumbling grave-stones told—
Where sadly, dust to dust was laid;
But they were never there.

The grasses wave, the spring-birds sing,
The gentle south winds blow;
But where are they who trod these banks
A hundred years ago?

The sun shines on; the moon and stars
March on their wonted way;
But those who watched them then have Passed away.

And where, O where are they?
The answer none can give,
For they are gone, and all that's left
Is silence and the grave.
